Congressional Committee Will Hold Forestry Meetings In State

Mobile Will Be Scene of Meetings To Discuss Future Of Alabama's Forests

Washington, D. C. — The Joint Congressional Committee on Forestry, of which Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama is chairman, will hold meetings at Mobile some time next fall. This committee, created in June, 1938, by the Congress upon the recommendation of the president, will study the forest land problem of the entire United States. "These investigations of the committee will be of great interest and importance to the people of our state," said Senator Bankhead in discussing the subject at his office in Washington, "because Alabama is outstanding in several respects relating to forestry and the continuous production of forest products."

Alabama Saw Mills

He pointed out that Alabama has more active saw mills than any other state in the United States except North Carolina. In lumber production it ranks fifth among the states of the country and first in the production of southern yellow pine, about 200 million board feet. Besides yellow pine, about 200 million feet of cedar, cypress, oak, red gum, tupelo, yellow poplar, and several other hardwoods were produced. The number of wage earners employed in saw mills exceeded 17 thousand, and the wages paid $9,339,000. The total value of all saw mill products in Alabama in 1937 was nearly 32 million dollars.

Some of the finest forest land in the Southern pine belt occurs in Alabama. Of the total area of 33,000,000 acres in the state, nearly 19 million acres is commercial forest land. About half of this occurs on individual farms. There is no doubt that the future welfare of the state is dependent upon keeping these forest lands productive, and further it is for these reasons that the work of the Joint Congressional Committee is going to be of immense importance and value, not only to the people at large, but also to the farmers and small woodland owners.

Date Announced Later

The definite date for the hearing will be announced long enough in advance to permit everyone to appear who has views to present on ways and means of forest restoration of lands incapable of growing other crops than timber, of managing existing private and public timberlands so that they will continue to produce lumber and other forest products for all time to come, and of assisting the farmer in growing and marketing materials from his own woodlot.

Business Women To Meet Next Friday

The regular monthly meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club will be held Friday afternoon, July 14, with Dr. Hallie Farmer at the College View Apartment, with Dr. Joyce Kellogg as co-hostess.

After the meeting a picnic supper will be served in the garden.

Within the next few days containers for voluntary contributions will be placed in the business houses, where Business and Professional Club members are located. These contributions will be used in a drive against tuberculosis in Shelby County. This drive is sponsored by the Columbiana and Montevallo chapters of the National Business and Professional Women's Club. They are working with Miss Mamie Jo Harbin, county health nurse, who reports that one of the most imperative needs of the county is a fight against tuberculosis.

Containers will be placed in the Alabama Power Co., The Little Shop, Mahan Beauty Shop, Ben Franklin Store, Montevallo Cafe, Montevallo Grocery Co., and Yeager Studio.

Health Officer Gives Suggestions For Mosquito Control

During the hot weather months, when it is necessary to leave all windows and doors open, special thought should be given to the adequate screening of houses.

Screening that will keep out mosquitoes will also keep out flies and no screen wire coarser than 16 mesh should be used.

Mosquitoes, failing to gain entrance at the windows or doors will search diligently for any opening by which they may enter. Therefore, knot holes, cracks, flues, chimneys, etc., must be protected.

Flies develop from maggots, which are hatched in a manure pile or in other organic refuse. They feed in the banyard, in the privy on any dead and decaying animal, and then come in and feed on the food on the table or in the kitchen.

They may come in contact with typhoid or other disease germs from a carse or a carrier, and then contaminate the food with which they come in contact.

Mosquitoes, the anopheline variety of which is the carrier of malaria, can be effectively kept out of the house by proper screening.

Since the malaria bearing mosquito bites usually at dusk and at night, one should, as far as possible, stay within the protection of his screens after sundown.

Landowners, and particularly farmers, should consider the economic value of screening, not only their homes, but those of their tenants as well. The diseases carried by these insects are prevalent just at the time that every tenant's help is needed.

Your Health Department will gladly furnish information concerning proper and inexpensive methods of screening.—E. F. Sloan, M. D., County Health Officer.

Class Suggests Plan For Town Clean-Up

An example of citizenship at its best can be found in Mr. W. J. Bailey, in the opinion of a class in the Progressive Education Summer School.

Mr. Bailey is the person responsible for the grading of the lawn of the Girl Scout Little House, in which the high school is greatly interested. The class is remodeling the lawn as a project in their study of better housing. Mr. Bailey kindly consented to aid in this undertaking by loaning his tractor for grading, thus bringing about the admiration and gratitude of every member of the class.

The class has other projects under way that call for good citizenship. For instance, after making a detailed study of the garbage conditions in this city, the class has the following recommendations to make: Montevallo needs an ordinance requiring standard size garbage cans to be bought by all property owners.

If this were passed, the problem of how to dispose of Montevallo's abundant supply of unsightly garbage would be virtually solved.

The following are reasons why this ordinance should be passed:

1. It would lower the tax rate because cleaning up facilities would not be needed so much and therefore, the town's expenses would be cut.

2. It would facilitate an easier and quicker job for the garbage collector, thus leaving him open for other clean-up jobs.

3. Most important of all, there would be no more unsightly junk heaps in back yards.

DR. WILSON SELLS PROPERTY ON SOUTHSIDE OF TOWN

Dr. P. C. Wilson, in recent weeks, has disposed of some lots on his property in Montevallo's southside, and the purchasers are building homes on their acquisitions.

Further plans of Dr. Wilson include the layout of a large subdivision in which a number of choice lots will be available.

This would make an ideal residence district, as city water and light facilities are to be had in that area.

Availability of F. H. A. finance terms will be a factor in rapid development of the proposed subdivision.

Amendments Receive Large Majority Here

Early returns gathered Wednesday indicated that the constitutional amendments had received majorities in Tuesday's election ranging from four to one to six to one.

While the vote was light in Montevallo box, yet the majority was overwhelmingly in favor of all amendments. The official tabulation as posted in the certificate of results, is as follows:

	For	Against
No. 1	81	3
No. 2	76	3
No. 3	77	7
No. 4	81	3
No. 5	80	3

The great majorities for the amendments are construed by political observers as a vote of confidence in the administration of Governor Frank M. Dixon.

Alex Scott, College's Oldest Employee, Dies

The purple and gold flag of the Alabama College was at half mast Saturday in recognition of the death of the institution's oldest employee in the point of service.

The man whose loss is grieved by the entire college community was Alex Scott, 63, Negro head janitor, who came to Alabama College 37 years ago during the administration of Dr. Francis Marion Peterson. He continued in service during the administration of Dr. Thomas W. Palmer, Dr. O. C. Carmichael, and Dr. A. F. Harman.

Because of his long service faculty members address Alex affectionately as "Dr. Scott". They were saying Saturday Alex achieved just about all the respect and admiration that a man in the professional ranks might hope for.

Last spring the college journalism class interviewed Alex. One student described him as "a small, pleasant-looking man, with twinkling eyes and a sparsely covered head. He is always dressed in a black or navy suit."

He was quoted as saying: "The girls and teachers have changed an awful lot since I came here 37 years ago. They're smarter and brighter than they used to be."

Somebody asked him his favorite recreation and Alex replied proudly: "Church and Sunday School. I'm the oldest deacon."

The body was carried to Gallion, his old home near Demopolis.

Rural Electrification Meeting In Columbiana

There is electric power on a good per cent of the farms in Shelby County, but many other families in the county need and want this service.

There will be a meeting at the Courthouse on Saturday afternoon of this week at 2 o'clock, with representatives of the Rural Electrification Authority present to go over the entire matter and explain how the service of this organization may be secured in rural sections.

All people interested in electricity on the farm are urged to come to this meeting, so that the whole program may be understood. Tell your neighbors about the meeting. —A. A. Lauderdale, County Agent.

ALABAMIANS NOT SAFE FROM DROWNING NEAR HOMES

Alabamians are by no means safe from drowning even in and near their own homes, according to a special study of 1937 drownings conducted by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health.

This study shows that 13 deaths, or nearly nine per cent of all those attributed to drowning, occurred in homes and on home premises.

HOME AGAIN

The editor of the Times is at home after a month in the Veterans Hospital in Tuscaloosa.

I have a few more weeks of resting to do before I can get back into the harness for real work.

It is good to be at home where I can see my friends and have a few chats with some of you every day.

I want to express my thanks to all of you who have been so good to us during my absence.

By your loyalty and support the business has been able to continue without interruption, and I have about concluded that the missus and the boys can do as well without an editor as with one, so long as we have friends like you.

I must acknowledge the great joy that was brought to me while in the hospital by numerous letters and messages from many of you.

Unless you have been sick and away from home, you do not know how much good it does one in that condition to get a letter from a friend.

Your continued interest and loyal friendship will be the means of restoring me to health and my much coveted ability to be of worthwhile service in our community.

ALEX SCOTT

"Great souls are always loyally submissive, reverent to what is over them"—Carlyle.

Passing from life into death, Alex Scott, Negro, long-time employee of Alabama College, carries with him the deserved respect of all our citizens, regardless of race.

His life was one of humility, honest work, frugal habits and clean character. He was ever faithful to his trust. In him we find proof that although one may be destined to live at the foot of a mountain, he may have that quality of character that will reach upward to the higher places round about.

Alex Scott's was one of the great souls that came out of obscurity, grasped the principles of right living that bore him to great heights in the eyes of his associates.

Among his race he was a leader, quiet, easy of speech, a sane and wise counselor.

Among his white folks — those with whom and for whom he worked for many years, he was respected for his unflinching devotion to principles of good character, his loyal submission and reverence to what was over him.

"Greatness, after all, in spite of its name, appears to be not so much a certain size as a certain quality in human lives. It may be present in lives whose range is very small."—Phillips Brooks.

As an exponent of the simple virtues that make a good life, Alex deserves the many tributes of respect that have been accorded him.

How the weeds have grown in the past six weeks! Soon we will be in our annual "drive" to cut them down and clean up the town before school starts again.

WHO BURNS OUR FORESTS?

Official figures from the Forest Department of Alabama state that in 1937 forest fires cost Alabama $1,125,000. In 1938 fires cost Alabama $2,016,541. Less than 1/4 of 1% were caused by lightning, 99% by man's carelessness and ignorance.

The South needs productive forest lands to maintain its prosperity but it cannot have them while uncontrolled burning of wood continues.

Yearly burnings in the South amount to 4/5ths of the total forest area burned in the United States. Alabama is 3rd in the United States for the greatest area burned. This represents a loss running into millions of dollars. When you consider that the timber would increase in value each year, the loss to the individual and to the state is staggering.

It is difficult to understand how any human being can deliberately set fire to destroy, yet in 1938, 11,454 fires were of incendiary origin, costing Alabama over a million dollars.

Doesn't it seem paradoxical that campers, sportsmen, the people who love the great outdoors, the woods, the birds, should be the greatest destroyers of that which they love? Campers last year caused 2,563 fires, and smokers 11,698, destroying 771,223 acres of land costing Alabama $604,113, another half million, the biggest fire bill, the biggest single item on the list of fire causes. What are we going to do with the careless cigarette and match thrower?

We have adequate fire laws in Alabama, but, until public opinion is aroused, the public made aware of the seriousness and danger of forest fires, these laws cannot be enforced.

Individual responsibility for promiscuous woods-burning must be established and the individual led through education to realize the need for outlawing forest fires, and for taking part in keeping fire out of forest lands. If we could educate Americans to be careful with fire, 95% of our fire problems would be solved.

County Agent Suggests Emergency Food And Feed Crops

Due to the continued rains, many Shelby County farmers are going to be short on food and feed crops another year, and since it is possible to provide for some of these even now, I am offering the following suggestions:

Corn—Corn may be planted on good basin or bottom land and cut for forage if it will not mature. I would suggest Mexican June, Early Dent, of Truckers Favorite varieties.

Soybeans — Plant O-Too-Tan or Laredo soybeans on good land in 2 1/2 foot rows, using about 2 pecks per acre. Two hundred pounds of phosphate per acre will increase the yield.

Cowpeas — Cowpeas for seed or hay may be planted with a reasonable expectation of a crop. Plant 20 to 30 pounds in 3-foot rows or broadcast 60 to 90 pounds per acre.

Sorghum — Sorghum will make more hay per acre than any other crop and is reliable for a late crop on good land. Broadcast about one-half bushel of seed per acre, or one-fourth bushel of sorghum and one bushel of cowpeas per acre. Use the variety of sorghum seed you have on hand, but if you have to buy, get as early variety as possible.

Sweet Potatoes—The sweet potato is a crop that can easily be propagated from vine cuttings. Large quantities of food for people and feed for livestock can be made on a small area. It is entirely possible for a farmer to fatten his hogs with sweet potatoes, if a little protein supplement is fed along with them. The abandoned or plowed up cotton land is a good place to plant potatoes, since there is some fertilizer there. In preparing cuttings, it should be kept in mind that the older the vines make the best cuttings. These cuttings should be 8 to 12 inches long and set in moist soil by using a stick to push into the ground and pack soil firmly around the plant.

Collards — Collards are an old stand-by and most folks know how to grow them. The seed of this crop would normally be sown in late May or June. Under the present conditions, it would certainly be wise to make additional plantings. The seed should be planted in a row the same as turnips are planted. As the plants begin to develop they should be thinned to about 2 feet in the drill, and the extra plants used to set additional rows.

Some of these plantings may fail, but it is worth a try. If we can help you in any way with suggestions about producing food and feed crops, please call on us.

SICK HEADACHE

Usually Caused by Constipation

Sick Headache is usually another terrible result of Constipation. To gain relief you must relieve the congestion of waste matter that has accumulated in the system due to Constipation or improper elimination. You need more than just a common laxative. What you need is something that will give complete elimination and at the same time stimulate the bowels to a resumption of their normal, regular action. Take Taylor's Vega-Cal, A PURELY VEGETABLE, pleasant tasting preparation, that has been used by four generations. That is proof of its merit and popularity. Cotton Research Foundation And Cotton Council Join Forces

Memphis, Tenn., June 29—Moving forward with coordination of the cotton industry's efforts toward increased consumption, the National Cotton Council announced today an agreement under which the Cotton Research Foundation will become the research division of the council.

President Oscar Johnson of the Cotton Council and President Everett R. Cook of the Research Foundation said in a joint statement that the new affiliation would become effective on July 1.

Operating through multiple fellowships in the Mellon Institute of the Industrial Research, the Foundation will continue its present exploratory program and in addition will handle all matters of scientific research arising out of activities of the national council.

"This very practical arrangement," said Mr. Johnson, "has the double advantage of coordinating the efforts of the two organizations and of providing the Cotton Council immediately with a scientific research division which, under any other plan, would have required considerable time for organization and development.

"It is a major step toward efficient coordination of the efforts of the cotton industry as it proceeds with its new and aggressive program for increased consumption of cotton and cottonseed products."

Organized in Memphis three years ago, the Research Foundation has under way or completed 29 projects looking toward new uses for lint and seed products. New uses and processes which already have passed laboratory tests are being further developed for final commercial production.

In addition to its work in the Pittsburgh laboratories of the Mellon Institute, the Foundation has projects under way at the University of North Carolina, the University of Texas, the Texas Technological College, the University of Tennessee, and the University of Pittsburgh. Further expansion of research projects is to be undertaken in colleges and universities where suitable projects are proposed and to the extent that available funds make possible.

Commenting on the new affiliation, President Everett Cook of the Foundation said he was convinced that "through such a combination of effort, both organizations will be able to increase the effectiveness of their work in behalf of the cotton industry. We are happy indeed to join forces with the council in its vital program."

Boll Weevils Are Becoming Serious

Auburn, Ala. — Reports received from many parts of the state indicate boll weevils are quite numerous in cotton fields at the present time. W. A. Ruffin, entomologist of the Alabama Extension Service, said today. The presence of these insects at this season of the year, along with the rainy or cloudy weather, indicates that farmers may expect to have their cotton crop seriously reduced by the boll weevil this summer.

Ruffin said pre-square poisoning is of some value in controlling boll weevils if they are numerous on young cotton but is no insurance against boll weevil damage later in the season. In pre-square mopping, calcium arsenate is applied in a syrup mixture to the buds of the cotton plants. The mixture used consists of one pound calcium arsenate, one gallon of water, and one gallon of syrup thoroughly mixed together. In making the poison mixture, the calcium arsenate should be stirred into a small amount of water. The remaining part of water and the syrup should then be added. The sweet poison should be applied with a small cloth mop on the end of a stick two to three feet long.

"The most difficult problem in controlling the boll weevil is that of knowing when to dust and when not to dust the cotton," he said. "In general, it is profitable to dust cotton only when the expected yield is one-half bale or more per acre."

The only way to know whether or not boll weevils are numerous enough to warrant dusting is to make infestation counts of the squares. In making these counts 100 squares are selected at random and each square is examined for punctures before counting is begun on a new one. Squares on the ground are not counted. The number of punctured squares among 100 examined is the per cent infestation at a given place.

Infestation counts are begun as soon as the cotton is squaring

Harry Klotzman Is Honored With Party

Mrs. Sam Klotzman entertained Tuesday afternoon, July 11, honoring her little son, Harry, on his fifth birthday.

When these little fellows begin to entertain it makes us older ones sit back in shame. To see a little gentleman like Harry rushing around to see that all his guests are having a time of their young lives is something else, and no where will you find a more genial host than Harry.

After a most delightful afternoon of games, ranging from cowboy stunts to drop the handkerchief, on the lawn appeared one of the most beautiful blue and white birthday cakes. "Happy Birthday, Harry" was embossed across the top. (Why do we have to grow up?) The cake with ice cream and candy was then served to the guests.

Later in the afternoon favors were given to the following guests: Rita Joyce Day, Edgar Givhan, Sue Henning, Laura Ann Hicks, Lois Ruth Hoffman, Joy Holcomb, Juanita Holder, Griffin Jellin, Milton Jeter, Evelyn Jones, Martha Jane Mahaffey, Mary Charles Mahaffey, Alice LaRue Cowles, Jean Tate, Carlisle Towery, Frances Davis, Roy Davis, Lillian Baer of Calera, Eleanor McCloskey, Eleanor Ann Mitchell, Dudley Pendleton, Betty Ann Klotzman, James Agee Kelly, and Pat Kelly.

Mrs. Klotzman was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. J. B. Margolis of Montgomery, and Mrs. R. P. Holcombe.

HENS PAY $2.23 PER BUSHEL OF CORN

Auburn, Ala.— John E. Ivey, poultryman of the Alabama Extension Service, said reports of the Alabama Poultry Demonstration Flocks in 63 counties of the state showed that during the month of May hens paid $2.25 per bushel for corn in addition to paying for supplement at three dollars per hundred pounds.

During the month hens showed a net return of $11.45 above feed costs and gave a gross income of $25.28. There were 209 farms with 33,734 hens included in the May freely and are made at weekly intervals until the average per cent infestation in a field reaches 10 per cent or above. Three applications of calcium arsenate are then made at intervals of four to six days.

summary of the demonstration flocks.

Other facts brought out in the report by Ivey were: Each hen laid an average of 17.31 eggs during the month; total feed costs for month (all flocks) $4,661.04; average number of hens per farm was 161; average return above feed costs per farm was $18.50

The Alabama Extension Service has launched a three-year home beautification program which Homer S. Fisher, landscape gardener, says will make a more attractive rural Alabama, for the tourists to see a more satisfied farm people—all at a very small expense each year.
